PERSONA

Sacha

The trusted relay

For Sacha, passing on Russian means being able to rely on a trusted structure.

> I need a reliable, nearby solution that has already been validated by other parents.

Who he is

Sacha wants to pass on Russian without carrying the entire teaching burden alone. He looks for a reliable structure — a school, teacher, activity or group — that can create a reassuring routine and real continuity.

His decisions are driven mainly by trust: recommendations from other parents, the quality of the adults involved, proximity and a clear framework.

For him, a good solution must be credible, easy to integrate and useful over time.

Desired depth of transmission	Medium to high
Need for structure	High
Reliance on the ecosystem	High
Tolerance for complexity	Low to medium
Emotional weight of transmission	Medium

Objectives

- Maintain regular use of Russian
- Create a stable routine for the child
- Delegate part of the transmission
- Anchor the language in a sustainable framework

Habits

- Asks people around him for recommendations
- Compares options by proximity and schedule
- Assesses the quality of the adults and the group
- Prefers clear and reassuring solutions

Deep motivations

- Prevent language loss caused by a lack of continuity
- Provide a structured framework
- Find reliable people and structures to rely on
- Make transmission sustainable over time

Frustrations

- It is difficult to know whom to trust
- The available options are fragmented and uneven
- Logistics can make the whole arrangement fail
- Promises are sometimes too vague

What would encourage adoption

- Reliable recommendations
- A clear, nearby and stable framework
- Adults known to be supportive and caring
- Simple enrolment and use