PERSONA

Victor

Structured transmission

For Victor, passing on Russian means building real progress through method and continuity.

> If Russian is going to be passed on, it should be done seriously, with real progress.

Who he is

Victor approaches transmission as a structured project requiring method, regularity and visible progress. He wants the investment to produce real results, not merely occasional exposure to the language.

He is prepared to organise, compare and monitor, provided he can find a serious, transparent and coherent offer.

For him, structure and depth belong together.

Desired depth of transmission	High
Need for structure	High
Reliance on the ecosystem	Medium to high
Tolerance for complexity	High
Emotional weight of transmission	Medium to high

Objectives

- Ensure real linguistic progress
- Establish solid routines
- Combine language, culture and discipline
- Give the child lasting foundations

Habits

- Plans and compares options
- Looks for structured programmes
- Monitors educational quality
- Observes outcomes and adjusts the approach

Deep motivations

- Avoid superficial transmission
- Turn effort into visible results
- Build a secure bilingual future for the child
- Make the language sustainable over time

Frustrations

- Lack of clarity about level and progress
- Options can be vague or improvised
- A heavy organisational burden
- Difficulty finding a framework that is demanding yet humane

What would encourage adoption

- A structured and transparent pathway
- Credible and committed adults
- Clear educational objectives
- Logistics that remain manageable